I'll never forget the memories of growing up in jasmine courts. My favorite memory is you sitting on your porch listening me sing ashanti's "Baby". A close second is you putting foil on your bike tires pretending you had rims. :) you were so silly. I am so happy I could call you my friend. Baby I love you and you will always have a special place in my heart.

The fondest moment I have of Baybee is the day I wed my wife. As our guests started to dwindle away and people were making plans on continue the partying else where, Baybee and Brendan hung around. Once the last song was played both my wife and I immediately started the cleaning process with the help of a few other friends. As I was throwing things into the huge black garbage bag, here comes Baybee with a smile on my face and tells me "Let me get this for you, you shouldn't be cleaning. It's your special day." I thanked him for offering and told him not to worry about it. But he did not give in. He was so adamant about helping me clean up! Long story short, he ended up staying there with us until everything was complete. Not only did he help clean, he also helped pack things into the cars etc. This is the Baybee I will always remember. Always being helpful. Always with a big kool-aid smile. We love you Baybee. From the bottom of my heart, you will be missed dearly.

When I first met Baybee was when his brother Borin got his own place and took his bro out of foster care. We all went out together and always had a good time each time. I use to shave my hair and edge myself up all the time til 1 time I messed up on my edge before going out, and I was just going to stay home but everyone told me Baybee can edge and cut hair so he fixed me up and I was good to go. This was all before he went to school for cosmetology. I was really the first person he was edging up at the time and it was nothing to him, thats skills. I remember 1 time his brother Borin told me that when he came home from work, his lil bro Baybee was just outside chillin and Borin noticed that Baybee had sideburns and all LOL, he had put on some kind of makeup on himself just to see how he would look with facial hair. He was surely a goofy dude. He was a very positive person also, he was ahead of his time giving out advice to help you see things clear to be right. May you Rest in peace homey!!! We all miss ya!

I remember when I first met Baby in 1999. He was on his scooter riding around Calton Gardens. I yelled out his brother's name because they look so much alike. I said to him "You look just like your brother Borin" he just laughed and left with a smile on his face. That is something I've always remembered. He had big dreams but yet, he accomplished so much in life. You did good my brother! We're all going to miss your presence. Even though we know you are looking down on us, you'll always be in our hearts forever. Thanks for being a good friend and always being there when we needed you. You touched so many lives and left behind a legacy that no one can replace. I will continue to pray for you and your family. I'll see you, when I'll see you baby bro. Rest In Peace Baby

I don't even know where to begin or how to begin... I remember you when you were a little boy playing at my cousin's house 15 years ago in Condon Gardens. I watched you grow up. I saw you become a man. I heard about your great deeds and successes. I remember you talking about your goals and dreams like it was yesterday. You we're the first person that told me what that song "Give Me That Becky" meant. Hahaha. We partied together and joked together. All these years that past by and I never took the opportunity to even buy you a shot or tell you that you had a kind smile that made anyone smile back. I thought I had more time... I keep thinking I'll be at Hiro's and I'll see you walk through those doors with your boys looking fly and everything will be back to normal and it was just all a bad dream... I thought I had more time... Forgive me. I know you're in a better place where there is no sorrow or pain. You are missed very much here. R.I.P. Baby Am.

Our familys grew up together, and as the years went by, we grew up and apart, with little hit and miss meetings, I never thought the last time I had said bye to you would be the last. Everytime I seen you we would see how the fams doing and what everyone has been up to, and it was just always a great catch up session to tie together all lost connections. It was crazy, the last time I saw you, I had the last appointment for my haircut with you, for your last day, and when you told me you were moving away, I remember saying "I don't know when's the next time I'm going to see you" and sadly it haunts me to know, that would have been the last time truly. You were genuine person, who knew no prejudice, who respected all, and that's what I respect most about you. No colors, no clothes, no opinions ever made you forget who you are. You will be sorely missed by all who knew you. Rip Baby.
