Bobby Davis posted:

I knew Steve through his professional association, FADRA. We'd see each other every year at the annual convention, and we always had interesting conversations. He was such a kind, down-to-earth, and no-nonsense person who obviously cared deeply for the people in his life. When I last saw him at the end of July, he seemed happy and excited about his business refurbishing old cars. His death comes as a shock and I will miss him. A good man gone too soon.
