I have only known Papo a short while but when I met him I was in a very dark place, his kindness, caring, and compassion for others brought me out of that and showed me that there is hope for us after all, there are still people left in this world that are willing to help others. I will never forget you Harry, you are an amazing human being.

Condolences to the Gonzalez family. God promises to comfort those broken at heart who call upon him in their time of sorrow. He promises to grasp your hand with his right hand and help you. Jesus Christ promised that millions who have passed away have the prospect of living again at a time when no sicknesses will ever occur again. (Psalms 37:29)

I love you Papo. I don't know how I am supposed to live without you. I will never forget you. God definitely gained an angel. My love
