In looking through old photographs, dad isn't in a lot of the photos. It is not that he wasn't there, he was the shutterbug. Dad was behind the scenes. He worked hard, both on the job and at home. Dad was always a "Do-It-Yourself" kind of guy and could fix just about anything. And when the kids wanted to "help," he wouldn't hesitate to let us. Though mom did not always think changing oil or fixing bike tires was appropriate for a young lady, dad would patiently teach. He supported us, he believed in us, and he always told us we could be anything we wanted – we just had to work towards our goal. He worked with a lot of different people during his Navy and publishing careers. He accepted people for who they were, and he was universally respected. He didn't mince words, so you knew where you stood. When my husband wasn't sure what a conch pea was, dad bluntly said "If you don't like it, don't eat it." So, until we meet again in our heavenly father's house, we will have a hole in our hearts. We love you and we miss you.--Karen

Dear Frances, Karen and Mike, it is with a heavy heart that I write this. Steve Ferguson and John Pantellis sent out a text a few minutes ago and for that I am so thankful. To share just one memory is impossible. From the man in the boss' office to the host at his lovely home, Ron was the consummate Southern gentleman. He endured the transition of adding a woman to his sales office and graciously acknowledged my successes after enduring the normal first three years of learning the biz. I stayed at Ron and Francis' home on several occasions as the guys doubled up in ares hotels when we got together for Florida Summer Seminars, visits from Pete Peters VP of Sales, and just plain spending time together to get things right. This is a beautiful picture of Ron. This is the way I will remember him. My wishes are for you, Frances, as you adjust to your new normal. Much love to you three at this sad time.
