I have so many memories of Rick and didn't know which one I was going to share until I saw this great picture of him which perfectly sums it up. Some of you may not know this but Rick was always willing to lend an ear and try to help out if you had any kind of dilemma. That is the exact look he would have on his face when we were sitting at the kitchen table ready to have an intense conversation about something or another. It didn't matter what the topic was but he genuinely listened and made me feel what I was saying was important and always had well thought out advice to give me. This picture brought back a memory that put a smile on my face. I hope it puts a smile on your face too Deb. Love Denise
