Caleb, our journey together has spanned nearly two decades, and I can still vividly recall the moment you first walked through the doors. You had an uncanny understanding of systems from day one, and it was evident that you were the perfect fit. Over the years, we've shared countless nerdy conversations and exchanged our fair share of lighthearted jokes. Your absence will leave a significant void, and we will miss you dearly.

Caleb, you might be one of the most intelligent people I've ever had the pleasure of meeting. I was always willing to listen and learn from you whether it was you trying to explain to me in laments terms exactly how a product of ours worked or trying to teach me how USB or technology in general worked. I'll miss the long conversations about the history of different video games, the internet, and the general areas of the state we call home. Your unique sense of humor and vast knowledge will be greatly missed. Rest well, Caleb. You deserve the peace.

Caleb, you had many gifts that you shared with this world that made you so uniquely you. After having worked closely together for over 6 years I can say without a doubt you were a dedicated, reliable professional who was always willing to teach and help others. You were a master of information and a walking encyclopedia with a great sense of humor. Thank you for always being a great colleague and work friend. Rest in peace, buddy.

We are all shocked and dismayed by Caleb's passing and the huge void that remains in his absence. Caleb was a critical employee with an irreplaceable skillset. He was incredibly intelligent, dependable, and practically a human database for the entire staff (CalebGPT?). It's truly amazing how much information he was able to recall off the top of his head. On a personal note, I worked closely with Caleb on countless projects over the past 5 years and considered him my first lieutenant and a personal friend. He will be missed.
