Catera Hedges lit a candle in honor of Lucille.

I remember when I was younger I used to go over to her house almost every day and have a popsicle with her outside and almost every day I would have her sit outside with me and I would blow bubbles. I would always try to make a huge one to impress her. I loved being able to go over to her house and play with her dog and talk with her. I would always practice my cursive on her little notepads Saint Jude sent her. She loved seeing how much I was improving with my cursive. I remember when a stray cat came around and I named it. She was hesitant at first but eventually got used to it being around.

Thomas Hunkin posted:

Lucille was the younger sister to my mother, Clara. When Clara found herself a single mom, without a job, she and Lucille concocted a plan. Clara, Lucille, and baby Ralph moved to Cleveland. Mom got a job, and Lucille took care of Ralph. That is how both Lucille's and Clara's families ended up in Cleveland.
